Read the following passage and answer questions 31 to 40.

I was invited to sleep at Reggie's house. I had never slept at a friend's house before. But began when my sister asked, "are you taking your toy along?"

"That's the silliest thing I ever heard! Of course, I'm not taking my toy." I said.

She insisted that I had never slept without a toy, I told her that I would be fine. But now she had r thinking about it.

I began to wonder: Suppose I won't like sleeping without my toy. Suppose I just hate sleepi without my toy. My mother told me to take him but feared to be laughed at by Reggie and say that I' a baby.

That afternoon, I played with Reggie and she had big plans. She kept on talking and planning as she had never heard of toys.

I later told her of my plan of telling ghost stories. The scary, creepy, spooky ghost stories began to think of my toy. I asked her of having toys and decided to take my toy along.

Read the passage below carefully and then answer questions 41 to 50.

The sense of sight is the sense that human beings consider to be the most important. Even though actual seeing is performed by the brain, different types of eyes tell a great deal who possess them.

The eagle's eye is a real telescope and can see a rabbit at over one mile away, that is two kilometres.

Insects' eyes are made up of the accumulation of many other small eyes. Altogether, they offer a complete image.

Bats, in addition to seeing with their eyes, also 'see' with their ears. In the night, the sound they utter rebound off all surfaces and return to the ears. Then the brain creates an image of the place where they are flying.
