1. Read the passage below and then answer the questions that follow

You may think that expecting food to change your life is too much to ask. But have you considered that eating the right food at the right time will increase your energy, help you manage weight and ward off major illness?

Researchers have found that eating a meal with plenty of protein leaves you feeling more satisfied for longer when compared to a meal loaded with low-quality carbohydrates. Your body takes longer to digest protein, leading to a gradual increase in blood sugar. The high-protein breakfast will therefore carry you through the morning and, more importantly, through your tea break. Many high carbohydrate meals are absorbed quickly and send blood sugar on a roller coaster ride, taking your appetite with it depleting your energy.

Many foods contain antioxidants, but fruits and vegetables may be the richest source. Behaving like chemical warriors, antioxidants neutralise molecules known as free radicals before they damage arteries and body cells. This protects you from heart diseases, high blood pressure, cancer and diabetes. You can now see why antioxidant foods should be consumed in generous portions

Actually, forget pills-antioxidants work best when consumed in foods. In fact, nutritionists recommend that we eat five portions of fruits and vegetables a day. It's less daunting than it sounds: a portion equals a piece of fruit, three tablespoons of cooked vegetables or a glass of fresh juice. And do you desire to relieve yourself of some baggage? Calcium is the latest weight loss star to appear on the scene. Scientists stumbled on its magic by accident. From a study that measured the blood pressure of obese people, it was discovered that those who took one large tub of yoghurt a day in their diet lost an average of eleven pounds of body fat in one year, even though they did not eat less.

A follow-up study found that people on a high-calcium diet lost more weight and fat than did people on low calcium diet-and a gain, both consumed the same number of calories. Researchers believe calcium encourages fat cells to stop "getting fatter". Instead, the cells burn extra fat without you having to go anywhere near a gymnasium.

It probably sounds strange to say that you can eat more in order to lose weight. Obviously, the question you should ask immediately is, "Eat more of what? We are talking about foods rich in fibre. They have what is referred to as low-energy density; that translates to few calories relative to weight. This means that you can down a mountain without fear of calorie overload

Fibre also aids weight loss because it's filling. Most high-fibre foods take a lot of chewing, triggering your body's fullness sensors. Moreover, you absorb the food more slowly so you feel full longer.

Will the wonders of food ever cease? Not if researchers in nutrition keep up their pace. Let them keep the good news flowing-such as the fact that we don't have to starve ourselves to lose weight and keep diseases at a bay

2. Read the excerpt below and then answer the questions that follow

IN THE 'BOX' THE WOMENS HALL OF residence, no one was consulted before being assigned a room mate and one could end up with a real creep. In the first year, there was one room to be shared between two people. In the second and third years, one moved into a semi-divided room which guaranteed at least some privacy. Vera was lucky in the room-mate she drew in her second year. She was a commerce student called Mary-Anne Ngugi- a nice human being by any standards. She had a boyfriend whose name was Mathew Saisi who was studying Design. He was very friendly and had in fact hit it off with Tommy very well. Their shared room was therefore like an Island in the midst of the tumultuous sea that was the 'Box'. Mary-Anne was a Nairobiian whose parents lived in Buru Buru. Being an only daughter in a family of six, her parents treated her like something special and constantly brought her food from home. Most of this found its way to Vera, whom Mary-Anne treated like the sister she had never had. Vera had maintained enviably slim. So when Vera came in that night weeping, Mary-Anne was very solicitous of her. She put her in bed and just held her arms until she calmed down, then she made a cup of cocoa just the way Vera liked it-dark brown and sweet, with no milk.

"Want to talk?"

"Tommy and I broke up today. Then I went to look for my sister- I felt so lonely."

"A sister?"

"Yes, my twin sister."

"You have a sister in this town?"

“Yes!”

“How come she never comes to see you?”

“Are you going to listen!”

“Sorry, I was surprised, that’s all. You broke up with Tommy!” The expression on her face was so comical that Vera just laughed.

“I might as well let you tell the story Mary-Anne.”

“Sorry, but you can’t throw such shockers my way and expect me to think sensibly. Please tell me.”

“What was his crime?”

“Nothing. It’s got nothing to do with him at all. I just did not feel right about it, that’s all”. I just did not feel right about it, that’s all.”

“There are many questions I could and should ask, but I will ask only one-how did he take it”

“You know Tommy, he tried to take it with good humour and then suddenly he couldn’t take any more and he left.”

“Do you realize that you might live to regret this? Boys like Tommy simply don’t grow off trees you know. Some girl is going to snap him up faster than fast. All the same it is not for me to censure you-an adult woman. Think it; you may see things differently tomorrow. Tell me about your sister. Your twin sister, if you please!”
